Rediscovering Joy

Aria Dudhia

Glazed stoneware vessels. Embellished cotton calico wall hangings.

For Aria, project is rooted in the idea of reminiscing childhood, exploring memories and sentimentality, and rediscovering joy. She channeled her love for ladybirds and the excitement she felt when catching them as a child, to fuel this pattern focused, lively collection.

Artist Bio

Aria is currently a second year Design Crafts student at De Montfort University. She thrives when experimenting with mark making and creating expressive patterns. Her ideas are often communicated in a wide range of medium from embroidery thread to coloured slip. Aria feels inspired when taking segments of the natural world around her.
