Mandala of Tears

Becca Burns Ceramics

Ceramic and glass installation approx 1mx1m for low plinth

The piece is a juxtaposition of opposites, partly autobiographical, mandala made up of teardrop shaped pieces. The pieces are almost all black and white; the only colours being red and blue illustrating the political polarities in UK politics today.

The work explores the duality of life through contrasts (texture, tone, size and patterns), made up of the same shape: a teardrop of grief. Or is it the life-saving raindrop after a drought?
