Sew & Sew / PianoLALA

Christina Wigmore

Sew & Sew

Sew & Sew is a short soundscape made from the sounds of sewing, machines, pins dropping, fabric ripping.

PianoLALA

PianoLALA is a soundpad piano with accompanying visuals. Both pieces are inspired by my textile/surface design practice, morphed into sound & vision

Artist Bio

Christina is currently studying an MA in textile design at De Montfort University and mixes media to create multimedia & collage work inspired by everyday & treasured objects. She is interested in the psychology of nostalgia and how stories and memories can be incorporated into design to encourage emotional connection to textiles so people value what they buy and hold onto things for longer. Her design process involves building layers of imagery created by projecting light sources through objects and mixing print, weave and other digital media and processes. With a DIY/punk ethic of exploring what can be created from what you have to hand, inspiration comes from what's happening in society, stories of people, place and connections and the unexpected and absurd in life, art, performance and film.
